A MISTAKE.

I had been trudging for 12 hours through the steaming rain, which had penetrated even the thick tweed suit I wore It had rained steadily for 24 hours, and, judging from the thick, colorles sky and the white cloud wie this that hung about the lower -lopes of the mountains, there seemed every probability that a spell of bad weather had set in

Diven a with a goad by the utter discomfoit of the dirty inn I had left chind me in the morning, I pressed on n the run lashed gloaming toward the old Roman watering place on the southern side of the Stelvio pass, Bad Bor-There, I knew, the joys of good food, olean linon and luxurious bath waited for mo Of course I ought not to h we cant one thought on these comforts of civilization, for the Stelvio pass is one of the grandest in Europe, and it hal been my privilege to behold the great Madatsob glacter and the cloud veiled head of the Ortler Spitz, as I stood at the top of the pass and looked over the glories of the Tyrolean Alps

But I was very wet very tiled, very hungry, and I longed for my Capua down in the pleasant valley My portmanteau had gone on by post-the carry all, om-T no of Attaval and Departure of inscient post of foreign parts. At Bor-mio I would test me for three whole days, good dinners would I eat and sparkling Astr would I drink, and I would make merry with any pleasant folk chance might throw in my way And so the pains and penalties of the poor pedestrian would be forgotten, or iomembered only as a foil to the comforts of the present I hurriedly pulled myself up at this stage of my reflections, for anticipation had made me forget for a brief moment what was then my condition. The relentless rain had worked its way to my skin Only my feet were dry, thanks to the waterproof boots and stont leggings Postoffice Hones

I were I was as yet within some miles of my goal when I evertook two pedes trains whose case was much worse than my own, for these two belated wanderers were women and the poor creatures' skirts were wet and draggled and clung nuserably about their limbs Both were slender and young, and the he wy rain be it heavily on their heads and shoulders Bedraggled though they were, I saw at a glance they were ladies, and a few words uttored by one told me that they were countrywomen of my own My interest and sympathy were at once enlisted

'Another hour Betty, at most, and we can knock off What a tramp we've had, and how it can rain in this won derful country |

The girl who spoke (she could only have been in her carly twenties) had a fair, ruddy complexion, her checks look ed like roses that had had a thorough drenching, and a great lump of light brown hair, which showed beneath her souled gray felt hat was beavy with diamond drops of water. Both girls word next ulsters, but the rain had evidently soaked them through, and they clung tightly to the slim outlines of

The evolution came from Betty, whose dark eyes were turned full on mo Evidently the result of the inspection was favorable for Betty smiled and showed a roy of glumning little teeth, whose whiteness was accentuated by the rich red of the lips that enframed them. It is a long tramp from Trafoi," I

'Oh, we only came from Franzen-hohe this merning We had some lunch at Santa Maria, and we hope to reach Bormio by dinner time," said the other girl, whose name I afterward knew to be Kate, "for, to tell you the truth, we are both awfully hungry '

Do you doubt that hundreds of such cases reported to us as cured by 'Golden Medical Discovery' were genuine cases of that dread and fatal disease? You need not take our word for it. They have in nearly every instance, been so pronounced by the best and most experienced home physicians, who have no interest whatever in misrepresenting them and who were often strongly prejudiced and advised against a trial of 'Golden Medical Discovery," but who have been forced to confess that it surpasses in curative power over this fatal malady, all other medicines with which they are acquainted. Nasty cold liver oil and its hithy "emulsions' and mixtures had been tried in nearly all these cases and had either utterly failed to bene fit or had only seemed to benefit a little for a short time. Extract of malt whiskey, and various preparations of the hypo phosphites had also been faithfully tried in vain.

WHAT IS SOUND MONEY?

The President, r. Ids latter to the Chicago gold men, decreed for "sound money" and "rufe currency." Congressman Brywn of Nebraske aske (the President what he meant by "sound money," and if the proprieties of his official place obline him to forego the enforment of writing another buter explaining the last one, to please designate some one who has authority to speak for him, so that the people may be affor ed an intelligent opportunity, as he suggests, to study and decide this paramount public question.

Secretary Morion, came to the true t immediately and publicly deflord cound money as follows:

The President's critics in E. wh. sound money? An ordinary man business may not be that questioned that questioned the sound money's that some of each which has the most universal and . fluctuates per tensing power is markets of all countries. That at is the 'soundest' for a hard through the commerce of the civilize I was there is the most universal denseral The universal demand is always madup on the am ersal and Australias power of that money."

It was supposed that as Secretary Cabinet he was speaking authoritat vely for the President. This, howerer, was denied and it was stated that coldness existed between him and Secretary Morton. This is now denied. and the denial is corroborated by the fact that the President and Secretary Morton have lunched together and never were on botter terms with each other. The President has, however dealed the responsibility of Secretary Morton's definition of "sound moorg when he said it was money based upon ing with impatience for a clean-out and otherwise. definition of "sound money" from the Prosident.

THE STANFORD UNIVERSITY.

I is feared that the Stanford University will close. The professor, are sallto co looking for positions elsewater because there is no mone, in the Standford estate to pay for the maintenance of the University. Some time ago the horses at Palo Alto ranch and the brandles and wines at the Vina ranch were sold, and the expenses of the University have been defrayed forma train robbers, and as they from the private income of Mrs. Jane Stanford. Now a big sait involving $15,000,000 has been brought by the United States against the Stantor I estate. This checked the probate proceedings and resulted in tying up thing generally. The Belletin reports The latter dismounted and as the time to get b agains. Mr. Lathrop, the manager of the Stan- doctor came up there was a heated arford estate, as saying :

The University cannot pay its own expenses, for tuition is free. The boarding department pays, but that has nothing to do with paying the professors. There are seventy men in the faculty and about one thousand students, and the closing of the Unithe Government suit is speedily determined in favor of the estate.

Sheriffs Under Bonds to Auswer Before the Grand Jury,

The Silver State has the following relative to the Nebraska extradition

"Speriffs Kavenaugh of Nebraska and Wright of Ogden, both of whom were arrested for the alleged taking of a prisoner from the Battle Mountain Constable, have been held to answer before the Lander county Grand Jury in $16,000 bonds each. Constable Williamson of Battle Mountain claims that Michael Lamb, the prisoner, was in his custody, having been committed to the Lander county jail as a fugitive from justice. The Constable had Lamb at the depot ready to take him to Austin, when Sheriff Kavenaugh arrived and took Lamb into his charge. Williamson says he protested against the assumption of authority, but the Sheriff did not heed him. "An amusing circumstance in connection with the case was the action of the Battle Mountain Justice in commanding Sheriff Hadley to arrest and bring Kavenaugh to Battle Mountain. Sheriff Hadley replied that he had served his warrant, but if the prisoner was wanted to come after him. The Address. Judge William Webster statute was consulted and the Battle Song. ### Continued from Page 1

The two girls, tramping unprotected slong that lovely road which winds down from the summit of the pass to Italy, seemed quite free from any fear of danger. The discomfort of rain soaked clothing, boots heavy with mud, and the fatigue consequent on the long tramp seemed to be the only cause of complaint they had.

"You see, when one is on a walking tour, one can't stop for weather," remarked Betty, with a comprehensive glance round at the mist shrouded mountains, the rain lashed rocks showing their rich brown in vivid contrast to the gray sky and patches of vivid green moss. One must take the good and the bad just as they come, like the rough and the smooth places on the road. My friend and I are good walkers, and we onjoy a tramp like this in spice of the weather."

I had got the idea that the girls were sisters, although they were quite unlike in personal appearance. Bit by bit I got to know more about my damsels errant. They had walked most of the way from Innsbruck, through the Brenner pass to Botzen. There they had taken the train to Meran, and thence had pursued their tramp, stopping several days on the road at Spondelak, Trafoi and Franzenholic.

"We shall stay at Bormio a few days and rest, and then we shall meet our I avowed my ignorance.

"Nor do we. There was an American lady we met at Innsbruck who recommended the Nuovi Bagni tous. I think she thought us quite mad, but she was extremoly kind.
"Kittie," she added, suddenly addressing her companion, "do look down here at that leaping water. That must be the Adda.''

"Oh, our first Italian river, Betty! How jolly " cried the enthusiastic Kate, her gray eyes beaming out from under her dripping hat brim. Then she looked down the valley and tried. I think, to realize that this rain beaten seene really was Italy. "Cheer up, Kittie; it will be fine tomorrow and won't we revel in the sunshine when it comes?" It was Betty who spoke. The manner of the girls toward each other amused me. They seemed to take the role of guide and consoler in turns, just as, I have no doubt, they had taken it in turns to carry the rucksack which I had now in my care. Independent though they were, the girls seemed glad of my companionship, especially when we passed through one of the dark, cavernous galleries roofed with stones, built to protect the road from avalanches. They chatted in a friendly, unembarrassed manner, and the sound of the fresh young voices and the sight of the two pretty faces did A much to redoem the dreariness of the long, monotenous road. The next morning was a sumptious one. I was seen dressed and out of doors. I caught the sound of a woman's voice trilling out the refrain of an Ital ian volkslied.

The larklike joyonsness of the song seemed in harmony with the glorious merning. In a dreamy mood I listened. The singing voice floated nearer. I caught sight of a white straw sailor hat and a pink cotton blouse.

na. Italian peasant girls do not attire maris themselves thus. I am a trifle short sighted, but in a very few moments I was aware that the early rising song-stress was Miss Kate Morison. A glance at the hotel register had informed nie of the names of my follow padestrians.

She looked very pretty and fresh. The mass of light brown hair was twisted TISTRY skillfully executed at reasonable up neatly at the back of her head. Clearly the luggage of the two girls had turned up, for there were no signs of travel stain about the trim blue serge skirt and the crisply starched pink

> I wished her good morning and inquired for her absent friend.

"Oh, Betty is all right, thanks, only morning, and I wanted to make a little sketch from the bridge,"

"An artist as well as a singer?" I inquired, smiling. "Oh, you heard my chirruping, I suppose. One must sing when one feels so utterly happy. Isn't the air exhilarating? But I must make my sketch. I can sit on the parapet-so-and got just the view I want.

Hor busy pencil did its work with great rapidity, and when I asked permission to look at the sketch I was realy surprised at the masterliness of her touch and her knowledge of perspective.

She closed her sketchbook, and wo ralked back together to the hotel. In the garden we met Miss Betty. She, too, looked dainty and fresh after her night's rest. The same source of information that had made me acquainted with Miss Kittio's name had told me her's—Blount.

At breakfast I happened to mention her by name, and I fancied a look of surprise crossed her face at the glibness with which I uttered it. But her manner showed no displeasure, and I was encouraged to offer my escort for an ex-polition to the town of Bormio. The quaint, old world place, with its rough prevenients and narrow streets, so Italinn in its aspect, with the yellow washed houses and curious loggins, and musty, silent church, delighted Miss Kittie and gave much occupation to her pencil But Miss Blount, whose artistic superiority her friend had proclaimed, did not make any sket hes, although, no doubt, she stored up impressions for Nothing but a violent wrench would have enabled me to leave Bormio. I lingered on, hugging my chains, and the two girls, for what reason I know not, lingered too.
